

Lesson 5

Text-dependent questions

Let's remember that as critical readers, thinkers, and writers, we are going to read different stories to learn information to help us answer this guiding question: How can I understand different ideas? As we read the anchor texts in this unit, let's think of information or ideas we can learn from the text that will help us answer this guiding question.

Re-read the story. Then, complete the third step of the Close Reading process 3. Use annotations and text-dependent questions to collect information and check student understanding.

Lesson 5

Now let's think about the key details of the story. Think about this text-dependent question: What happened in the story? How did Olivia wear her mom out? Use information from the story. Close your eyes and massage your brains and think about your answer. What happened in the story? How did Olivia wear her mom out? Be ready to share with a partner. Turn to the person next to you (different from our last session) and take turns sharing your thinking.

Listen as students share to assess students understanding of a text read aloud or information presented orally or through other media by asking and answering questions about key details and requesting clarification if something is not understood.

This was awesome information! Let's go back to the text and annotate the evidence we have to support our thinking.

Model for students how to connect their retelling of the story to evidence from the text.

Open-ended response

Complete the fourth step of the Close Reading process 4. Use open-ended responses to check for student understanding of text and how information from this text supports their thoughts on the unit's big ideas/guiding question.

Think about this text-dependent question: Retell the Story. Do you think Olivia understands what her mom is telling her at bedtime? How do you know? Use information from the story. Use your Retelling Graphic Organizer to draw pictures of the key details from the story.

The image shows a screenshot of a digital document titled "Read Aloud" and "Close Reading Process Anchor Chart". It lists four steps of the close reading process:

1. Fluent Read of entire text for joy of reading and fluency (intonation, expression, and accuracy).
2. Read portions of the text closely for academic vocabulary, deeper understanding of topic, and annotate text.
3. Use annotations and text-dependent questions to collect information and check your own understanding.
4. Use open-ended responses to check your own understanding of the text and how information from this text supports your thoughts on the unit's big ideas/guiding question.

Lesson 5

Rotate and support student thinking with probing questions like:

- Who are the characters?
- What is the setting?
- What did the text tell you happened in the story?

DO

Provide support to students as needed and allow students to dictate responses to the teacher (write student words below each of their drawings for the story) each of their drawings).
