Students participating in Level Pre-Reader (PR) programming learn letter names, letter sounds, and letter formation of uppercase and lowercase letters.

The guidance provided below helps explain the intended use and purpose of the Pre-letter learning formative assessment.

This Pre-letter learning formative assessment is given at the start of Unit 1 and is used to assess students' prior knowledge. Students participating in the Pre-letter learning formative assessment may not have any prior knowledge on letter names, sounds, or formation, or other prerequisite skills: knowing how to hold a writing utensil, understanding directions given orally, or the student's ability to complete the rigor of the task with just a few examples.

The administration directions offer guidance on how to support students without prior knowledge. The resulting student assessment data allows the teacher to anticipate how students' strengths and areas of growth may impact the teacher's lessons.

The teacher will administer a Post-letter learning formative assessment near the end of instruction (Unit 4). The purpose of the Post-letter learning formative assessment is to quantify growth and learning accomplished over the duration of teaching. The resulting student assessment data will inform what instructional priorities the teacher sets in the classroom for the last unit of instruction.

Read this document in its entirety before administering the assessment. Throughout this document, different files are referenced. Files referenced outside of this document are italicized, while sections or pages referenced within this document are in quotation marks.

This document is organized in the same order of the steps in the assessment and analysis process.

1. Preparing to administer the formative assessment
2. Administering the formative assessment
3. Scoring the formative assessment
4. Analyzing student data
5. Planning for instruction

After the step-by-step directions and the sample student scored and analyzed assessment, the teacher will find all the referenced assessment documents.

1. Preparing to administer the formative assessment

Read this document in its entirety.

Uppercase letters: names and sounds and Lowercase letters: names and sounds - student prep

- The formative assessments for uppercase letter names and sounds, and lowercase letter names and sounds are administered one on one.
- The student will read from the “Uppercase letters: student version” and “Lowercase letters: student version” pages.
- Locate the “Uppercase letters: student version” and “Lowercase letters: student version”. Print one copy of the two pages.
- Gather one solid color piece of construction paper.

Note: The directions call for the teacher to provide a solid color piece of construction paper that will be used to cover parts of the assessment and help the student focus only on what is being read. Any solid, letter-sized paper item that is easy to maneuver will work. A file folder or pocket folder are possible substitutions.

Letter formation writing assessment - student prep

- The letter formation writing assessment is administered to the whole class at the same time. Each student will need a “Letter formation writing assessment” sheet and a pencil.
- Locate the “Letter formation writing assessment”. Print one copy for each student.

Formative assessment - teacher prep

- When administering and scoring the formative assessment, the teacher uses one “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet” per student.
- Locate the “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet”. The teacher needs one scoring worksheet per student.
- Review the scoring guidance in step 3, “Scoring the formative assessment”, before administering the assessment.

Class analysis - teacher prep

- Locate and use one “Class data analysis worksheet” to document the class data trends and action steps.

2. Administering the formative assessment

Some students may not have prior knowledge on letter names or sounds. The teacher wants to ensure all students have a positive experience during this assessment and have an opportunity to demonstrate what they know. If the teacher notices a student is struggling to provide any responses to letter names or letter sounds, the teacher will use the following protocol.

- Determine if the student does not know or is fatigued with testing.
 - If the student doesn't know, skip to the next main bullet.
 - If the student is fatigued, release the student and pull them again later to finish. The teacher may say, "Great effort! Let's finish the rest later."
- Give the student up to 5 seconds to provide a name and sound for each letter.
 - If after 5 seconds, the student does not attempt an answer, the teacher can prompt, "Do you know the sound this letter makes?"
 - Wait up to another 5 seconds. If the student does not provide a sound, do not tell the student the answer, but reply, "Nice thinking. Let's go to the next letter."
- If the student experiences these long pauses more than twice in one row without being able to produce a reply, it is time to switch how the teacher is administering the assessment.
 - Reveal the entire row and ask the student, "Do you know any of the names or sounds of the letters in this row?" Mark their response on the scoring worksheet accordingly.
 - Continue to the next row. Reveal the entire next row and ask the student, "Do you know any of the names or sounds of the letters in this row?" Continue row by row until the assessment is complete.

As the teacher administers this formative assessment and collects data on letter name, sound, and formation knowledge, the teacher will also pay attention to the student's nonverbal reading readiness behaviors. Taking observational notes on these behaviors will provide insight on the student's emotional readiness for reading instruction.

- Interest. Does the student show excitement and focus with the task?
- Motivation. Is the student independently engaged without constant prompting from the teacher? Is the student trying?
- Temperament. How would the teacher categorize the student's mood? Are they happy, sad?
- Disposition. What does the student's body language tell the teacher? Are they slouching or sitting up straight?

Note: Reference the "Exploring ways young children learn best" section of the Implementation Guide for more information on this topic.

Follow the script in the table to administer the formative assessment. Directions are designated with "Say" and "Do" for the teacher actions alongside a description of the student actions.

Uppercase letters: names and sounds

(Administer to one student at a time)

Teacher

Student

Do: Place the “Uppercase letters: student version” in front of the student, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top of it.

Say: “We are going to work together to learn letter names and letter sounds, and how to write uppercase and lowercase letters. Before we start this learning, I want to see what you already know so we can focus our class time on learning new things. Right now you have the opportunity to show me what you already know. Just try your best.”

Say: “I am going to ask you to tell me the name and sound of these uppercase letters. Look at this example.”

Do: Pull down the piece of construction paper so that only the first row is showing. Point to the sample letter (A).

Say: “I am going to say the name and sound for this letter. A, /ă/. Now it’s your turn.”

Do: Pull the construction paper down to reveal the second row.

Say: “I want you to start at the first letter and move across. Can you put your finger under this first letter?”

Do: Point to the first letter (O), but do not name the letter.

Say: “Ok, we are ready to begin. Are you ready? [Wait for recognition from the student.] Ok, you can start saying the letter name and the sound it makes!”

Do: Listen as the student identifies the letter name and sound for uppercase letters. The teacher may need to prompt the student to the next letter and help them move their finger along. In the “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet”, use the uppercase letter name and sound columns to take notes on the student’s answers.

- If the student is struggling to name the letter or sound, use the protocol described above.
- If the student uses the long vowel sound (i.e. /ā/, /ē/, /ī/, /ō/, /ū/) or the soft sound of c or g (i.e. /s/ and /j/), prompt the student to name another sound. “Do you know another sound this letter can make?”

Student has “Uppercase letters: student version” in front of them, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top.

(Administer to one student at a time)

Teacher

After the student finishes, document any observations on the student's reading behaviors (i.e. interest, motivation, temperament, disposition).

Say: “Excellent effort! You read this whole page! Now we’re going to look at the lowercase letters and do the same thing.”

Student

Student has “Uppercase letters: student version” in front of them, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top.

Lowercase letters: names and sounds

(Administer to one student at a time)

Teacher

Student

Do: Place the “Lowercase letters: student version” in front of the student, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top of it.

Say: “I am going to ask you to tell me the name and sound of these lowercase letters. Look at this example.”

Do: Pull down the piece of construction paper so that only the first row is showing. Point to the sample letter (a).

Say: “I am going to say the name and sound for this letter. a, /ă/. Now it’s your turn.”

Do: Pull the construction paper down to reveal the second row.

Say: “I want you to start at the first letter and move across. Can you put your finger under this first letter?”

Do: Point to the first letter (o), but do not name the letter.

Say: “Ok, we are ready to begin. Are you ready? [Wait for recognition from the student.] Ok, you can start saying the letter name and the sound it makes!”

Do: Listen as the student identifies the letter name and sound for lowercase letters. The teacher may need to prompt the student to the next letter and help them move their finger along. In the “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet”, use the lowercase letter name and sound columns to take notes on the student’s answers.

- If the student is struggling to name the letter or sound, use the protocol described above.
- If the student uses the long vowel sound (i.e. /ā/, /ē/, /ī/, /ō/, /ū/) or the soft sound of c or g (i.e. /s/ and /j/), prompt the student to name another sound. “Do you know another sound this letter can make?”

After the student finishes, document any observations on the student’s reading behaviors (i.e. interest, motivation, temperament, disposition).

Say: “Excellent effort! You read this whole page! Wow! Now we’re going to write the uppercase and lowercase letters.”

Student has “Lowercase letters: student version” in front of them, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top.

Letter formation writing assessment

(Administer to the whole class together)

Teacher

Student

Do: Place the “Letter formation writing assessment” sheet and a pencil in front of each student.

Say: “I am going to ask you to write both uppercase and lowercase letters. Listen as I say the letter. When I say the letter, you are going to write both the uppercase and lowercase forms of the letter on this line.”

Do: Hold up a blank “Letter formation writing assessment” and point to where the students should begin.

Say: “Point to the same spot as me. That’s where you write your first uppercase and lowercase letters. Let me show you what I mean. I’m going to use a shape. When you write, you’re going to write the letter I say. Let’s pretend that a heart shape is a letter. When I write the uppercase heart, I’ll put it right here. And then the lowercase heart goes next to it.”

Do: Model writing an uppercase heart and lowercase heart.

Say: “Now it’s your turn. Remember, you’re going to write the uppercase and lowercase letter I say. Let’s start.”

Do: Read each letter in the order listed in the “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet”. Observe students as they write the uppercase and lowercase letters.

Say: “Excellent effort showing me what you already know! I can’t wait to look at the letters you’ve written. This information will help me plan fun and engaging lessons for us!”

Do: Collect students’ “Letter formation writing assessment” sheets.

Students have a blank “Letter formation writing assessment” sheet and a pencil in front of them.

3. Scoring the formative assessment

Letter name and sound formative assessment (uppercase letters and lowercase letters)

- Use one “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet” per student.
- The teacher will be marking the answer key as the student reads to the teacher.

Did the student correctly say the letter name and/or sound?

1. If yes, place a check mark next to the letter and/or the sound. Correct sounds include:
 - a. The hard c, /k/, and hard g, /g/, sounds.
 - b. The short vowel sounds (i.e. /ă/, /ĕ/, /ĭ/, /ŏ/, and /ŭ/).
2. If no, circle the letter and/or the sound and record what the student said. Errors include:
 - a. Omissions (e.g. The student does not say a letter name or sound.)
 - b. Insertions (e.g. The student says “M-O” for “M”.)
 - c. Substitutions (e.g. The student says “P” for “Q”.)

Letter formation writing assessment

- Use the “Letter formation answer key” for reference and comparison for each student’s “Letter formation writing assessment”.
- Use the columns for uppercase and lowercase letter formation to record the student’s “score”.

When determining if the letter is correct or incorrect, the teacher considers, Does the symbol that the student wrote mimic the correct letter formation as shown on the “Letter formation answer key”?

1. If yes, place a check mark next to the letter(s). Examples of correct formation would include:
 - a. The teacher can tell what the student was trying to make.
 - b. The symbol the student wrote has the correct general shape (e.g. a circular shape, a line shape, a circular shape with a stick, etc.)
2. If no, circle the letter(s). Incorrect formation includes:
 - a. The teacher cannot tell what letter the student was attempting to write.
 - b. The symbol the student wrote shares no common characteristics with the intended letter.

Notes:

- This “Letter formation writing assessment” is an artifact that will be used to assess growth over the program.
- The teacher will notice there is no criteria for letter size or placement of the letter on the solid or dotted lines that disqualifies a letter symbol from being considered correct. However, the student’s line placement of the symbol will help the teacher determine where the student is in their writing development and plan for ways to support them during instruction.

4. Analyzing student data

After the teacher has finished scoring the student's work, the teacher will step back and think about what information the teacher has gained about the student and how the teacher can use it to inform instructional decisions. Write down reflections on the bottom of the "Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet".

- A. What did the teacher notice while working with the student?
 - a. How did the student hold their pencil?
 - b. Did the teacher have to do much prompting?
 - c. Did the student follow oral directions?

- B. How would the teacher assess the student's emotional reading readiness?
 - a. Interest. Does the student show excitement and focus?
 - b. Motivation. Is the student independently engaged and trying?
 - c. Temperament. How would the teacher categorize the student's mood?
 - d. Disposition. What does the student's body language tell the teacher?

- C. What are the student's strengths and the student's areas of growth?
 - a. Did the student tend to recognize more uppercase or lowercase letters?
 - b. Could the student articulate the sounds for more consonants or vowels?
 - c. Did the student have an easier time writing straight lined letters, curved line letters, letters that use diagonal lines?

Repeat the scoring and analysis steps for each student's Pre-letter learning formative assessment.

Once the teacher has scored and analyzed each student's assessment, the teacher will look for trends or other noticings that will help the teacher plan effective instruction.

- D. What are the class strengths and the class areas of growth? Record the analysis and class responsive teaching plan on the "Class data analysis worksheet".
Do any trends stand out in the following categories?
 - a. Reading readiness behaviors (interest, motivation, temperament, disposition)
 - b. Prerequisite skills (following oral directions, pencil grip, completing the task with minimal examples)
 - c. Uppercase and lowercase letters
 - d. Consonants and vowels
 - e. Straight lined, curved lined, and diagonal lined letters

5. Planning for instruction

How does student data impact instruction? This data can help the teacher anticipate the class's emotional readiness for reading, as well as their strengths and areas for growth. The Reading Readiness and Phonics lesson plans are thoughtfully designed to offer age-appropriate and highest-quality instruction to students. Based on the class student data, the teacher may want to anticipate where in the lessons the teacher could experience challenges.

The chart lists examples of a few trends the teacher may notice in the students' data, what inferences the teacher may make, and a responsive teaching plan teachers can complete to support the students.

Sample Class Analysis and Responsive Teaching Plan Chart

Class data	Inference	Responsive teaching plan
Students demonstrated few indicators of emotional reading readiness.	Students haven't had the opportunity to learn and practice reading readiness behaviors.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Be ready to explicitly name participation expectations and support students' growth with frequent positive reinforcement and modeling. • Consider ways to bring in more music and movement to encourage participation.
Students demonstrated low proficiency with letter sounds.	This is an area of growth.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The teacher will need to explicitly model correct mouth formations for sounds. • The teacher will reference articulatory gesture guidance and use that during instruction.
Students demonstrated high proficiency of letter names.	This is a strength of the class.	Explore resources on Raz-Plus for extended learning opportunities. Letter books would offer opportunities for students to practice their letter fluency.
Students did not hold the pencil correctly when writing.	Students' ability to form letters correctly will be impacted by their ability to correctly hold a writing utensil.	The teacher needs to build correct pencil holding technique into instructional time and be prepared to provide feedback to students on pencil grip.

Letter Formation Writing Assessment

Sample student summary analysis:

Oliver can identify 8 uppercase letters and 7 lowercase letters. He formed 7 uppercase letters and 5 lowercase letters during the assessment (although he also wrote "l" and "i" correctly in his name). He is eager to try. He said things like, "It's in Elliot's name!" and "That's in my name!" when looking at letters. He held his pencil correctly. Oliver used the baseline on the letter formation sheet to position his letters! Oliver did not correctly make any letter sounds during the assessment.

I notice that this student's strengths are reading readiness and letter identification of the letters in his name. This student's areas of focus during instruction are on letter sounds.

Class data analysis statement

Targeted instructional areas

Data summary:

Responsive teaching plan: This class needs me to (how) (areas of growth), during (when), using (what).

Students participating in Level Pre-Reader (PR) programming learn letter names, letter sounds, and letter formation of uppercase and lowercase letters.

The guidance provided below helps explain the intended use and purpose of the Post-letter learning formative assessment.

This Post-letter learning formative assessment is given near the end of instruction (Unit 4). The purpose of the Post-letter learning formative assessment is to quantify growth and learning accomplished over the duration of teaching. The resulting student assessment data will inform what instructional priorities the teacher sets in the classroom for the last unit of instruction.

Read this document in its entirety before administering the assessment. Throughout this document, different files are referenced. Files referenced outside of this document are italicized, while sections or pages referenced within this document are in quotation marks.

This document is organized in the same order of the steps in the assessment and analysis process.

1. Preparing to administer the formative assessment
2. Administering the formative assessment
3. Scoring the formative assessment
4. Analyzing student data
5. Planning for instruction

After the step-by-step directions and the sample student scored and analyzed assessment, the teacher will find all the referenced assessment documents.

1. Preparing to administer the formative assessment

Read this document in its entirety.

Uppercase letters: names and sounds and Lowercase letters: names and sounds - student prep

- The formative assessments for uppercase letter names and sounds, and lowercase letter names and sounds are administered one on one.
- The student will read from the “Uppercase letters: student version” and “Lowercase letters: student version” pages.
- Locate the “Uppercase letters: student version” and “Lowercase letters: student version”. Print one copy of the two pages.
- Gather one solid color piece of construction paper.

Note: The directions call for the teacher to provide a solid color piece of construction paper that will be used to cover parts of the assessment and help the student focus only on what is being read. Any solid, letter-sized paper item that is easy to maneuver will work. A file folder or pocket folder are possible substitutions.

Letter formation writing assessment - student prep

- The letter formation writing assessment is administered to the whole class at the same time. Each student will need a “Letter formation writing assessment” sheet and a pencil.
- Locate the “Letter formation writing assessment”. Print one copy for each student.

Formative assessment - teacher prep

- When administering and scoring the formative assessment, the teacher uses one “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet” per student.
- Locate the “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet”. The teacher needs one scoring worksheet per student.
- Review the scoring guidance in step 3, “Scoring the formative assessment”, before administering the assessment.

Class analysis - teacher prep

- Locate and use one “Class data analysis worksheet” to document the class data trends and action steps.

2. Administering the formative assessment

The teacher wants to ensure all students have a positive experience during this assessment and have an opportunity to demonstrate what they know. If the teacher notices a student is struggling to provide any responses to letter names or letter sounds, the teacher will use the following protocol.

- Determine if the student does not know or is fatigued with testing.
 - If the student doesn't know, skip to the next main bullet.
 - If the student is fatigued, release the student and pull them again later to finish. The teacher may say, "Great effort! Let's finish the rest later."
- Give the student up to 5 seconds to provide a name and sound for each letter.
 - If after 5 seconds, the student does not attempt an answer, the teacher can prompt, "Do you know the sound this letter makes?"
 - Wait up to another 5 seconds. If the student does not provide a sound, do not tell the student the answer, but reply, "Nice thinking. Let's go to the next letter."
- If the student experiences these long pauses more than twice in one row without being able to produce a reply, it is time to switch how the teacher is administering the assessment.
 - Reveal the entire row and ask the student, "Do you know any of the names or sounds of the letters in this row?" Mark their response on the scoring worksheet accordingly.
 - Continue to the next row. Reveal the entire next row and ask the student, "Do you know any of the names or sounds of the letters in this row?" Continue row by row until the assessment is complete.

As the teacher administers this formative assessment and collects data on letter name, sound, and formation knowledge, the teacher will also pay attention to the student's nonverbal reading readiness behaviors. Taking observational notes on these behaviors will provide insight on the student's emotional readiness for reading instruction.

- Interest. Does the student show excitement and focus with the task?
- Motivation. Is the student independently engaged without constant prompting from the teacher? Is the student trying?
- Temperament. How would the teacher categorize the student's mood? Are they happy, sad?
- Disposition. What does the student's body language tell the teacher? Are they slouching or sitting up straight?

Note: Reference the "Exploring ways young children learn best" section of the Implementation Guide for more information on this topic.

Follow the script in the table to administer the formative assessment. Directions are designated with "Say" and "Do" for the teacher actions alongside a description of the student actions.

Uppercase letters: names and sounds

(Administer to one student at a time)

Teacher

Student

Do: Place the “Uppercase letters: student version” in front of the student, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top of it.

Say: “We are going to work together to learn letter names and letter sounds, and how to write uppercase and lowercase letters. I want to see how much you’ve learned and what you still need to learn so we can focus our class time. Just try your best.”

Say: “I am going to ask you to tell me the name and sound of these uppercase letters. Look at this example.”

Do: Pull down the piece of construction paper so that only the first row is showing. Point to the sample letter (A).

Say: “I am going to say the name and sound for this letter. A, /ă/. Now it’s your turn.”

Do: Pull the construction paper down to reveal the second row.

Say: “I want you to start at the first letter and move across. Can you put your finger under this first letter?”

Do: Point to the first letter (B), but do not name the letter.

Say: “Ok, we are ready to begin. Are you ready? [Wait for recognition from the student.] Ok, you can start saying the letter name and the sound it makes!”

Do: Listen as the student identifies the letter name and sound for uppercase letters. The teacher may need to prompt the student to the next letter and help them move their finger along. In the “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet”, use the uppercase letter name and sound columns to take notes on the student’s answers.

- If the student is struggling to name the letter or sound, use the protocol described above.
- If the student uses the long vowel sound (i.e. /ā/, /ē/, /ī/, /ō/, /ū/) or the soft sound of c or g (i.e. /s/ and /j/), prompt the student to name another sound. “Do you know another sound this letter can make?”

Student has “Uppercase letters: student version” in front of them, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top.

After the student finishes, document any observations on the student's reading behaviors (i.e. interest, motivation, temperament, disposition).

Say: “Excellent effort! You read this whole page! Now we’re going to look at the lowercase letters and do the same thing.”

Student

Student has “Uppercase letters: student version” in front of them, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top.

Do: Point to the first letter (b), but do not name the letter.

Say: “Ok, we are ready to begin. Are you ready? [Wait for recognition from the student.] Ok, you can start saying the letter name and the sound it makes!”

Do: Listen as the student identifies the letter name and sound for lowercase letters. The teacher may need to prompt the student to the next letter and help them move their finger along. In the “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet”, use the lowercase letter name and sound columns to take notes on the student’s answers.

- If the student is struggling to name the letter or sound, use the protocol described above.
- If the student uses the long vowel sound (i.e. /ā/, /ē/, /ī/, /ō/, /ū/) or the soft sound of c or g (i.e. /s/ and /j/), prompt the student to name another sound. “Do you know another sound this letter can make?”

After the student finishes, document any observations on the student’s reading behaviors (i.e. interest, motivation, temperament, disposition).

Say: “Excellent effort! You read this whole page! Wow! Now we’re going to write the uppercase and lowercase letters.”

Student has “Lowercase letters: student version” in front of them, with a solid color piece of construction paper on top.

Letter formation writing assessment

(Administer to the whole class together)

Teacher

Student

Do: Place the “Letter formation writing assessment” sheet and a pencil in front of each student.

Say: “I am going to ask you to write both uppercase and lowercase letters. Listen as I say the letter. When I say the letter, you are going to write both the uppercase and lowercase forms of the letter on this line.”

Do: Hold up a blank “Letter formation writing assessment” and point to where the students should begin.

Say: “Point to the same spot as me. That’s where you write your first uppercase and lowercase letters. Let me show you what I mean. I’m going to use a shape. When you write, you’re going to write the letter I say. Let’s pretend that a heart shape is a letter. When I write the uppercase heart, I’ll put it right here. And then the lowercase heart goes next to it.”

Do: Model writing an uppercase heart and lowercase heart.

Say: “Now it’s your turn. Remember, you’re going to write the uppercase and lowercase letter I say. Let’s start.”

Do: Read each letter in the order listed in the “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet”. Observe students as they write the uppercase and lowercase letters.

Say: “Excellent effort showing me what you already know! I can’t wait to look at the letters you’ve written. This information will help me plan fun and engaging lessons for us!”

Do: Collect students’ “Letter formation writing assessment” sheets.

Students have a blank “Letter formation writing assessment” sheet and a pencil in front of them.

3. Scoring the formative assessment

Letter name and sound formative assessment (uppercase letters and lowercase letters)

- Use one “Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet” per student.
- The teacher will be marking the answer key as the student reads to the teacher.

Did the student correctly say the letter name and/or sound?

1. If yes, place a check mark next to the letter and/or the sound. Correct sounds include:
 - a. The hard c, /k/, and hard g, /g/, sounds.
 - b. The short vowel sounds (i.e. /ă/, /ĕ/, /ĭ/, /ŏ/, and /ŭ/).
2. If no, circle the letter and/or the sound and record what the student said. Errors include:
 - a. Omissions (e.g. The student does not say a letter name or sound.)
 - b. Insertions (e.g. The student says “M-O” for “M”.)
 - c. Substitutions (e.g. The student says “P” for “Q”.)

Letter formation writing assessment

- Use the “Letter formation answer key” for reference and comparison for each student’s “Letter formation writing assessment”.
- Use the columns for uppercase and lowercase letter formation to record the student’s “score”.

When determining if the letter is correct or incorrect, the teacher considers, Does the symbol that the student wrote mimic the correct letter formation as shown on the “Letter formation answer key”?

1. If yes, place a check mark next to the letter(s). Examples of correct formation would include:
 - a. The teacher can tell what the student was trying to make.
 - b. The symbol the student wrote has the correct general shape (e.g. a circular shape, a line shape, a circular shape with a stick, etc.)
2. If no, circle the letter(s). Incorrect formation includes:
 - a. The teacher cannot tell what letter the student was attempting to write.
 - b. The symbol the student wrote shares no common characteristics with the intended letter.

Notes:

- This “Letter formation writing assessment” is an artifact that will be used to assess growth over the program.
- The teacher will notice there is no criteria for letter size or placement of the letter on the solid or dotted lines that disqualifies a letter symbol from being considered correct. However, the student’s line placement of the symbol will help the teacher determine where the student is in their writing development and plan for ways to support them during instruction.

4. Analyzing student data

After the teacher has finished scoring the student's work, the teacher will step back and think about what information the teacher has gained about the student and how the teacher can use it to inform instructional decisions. Write down reflections on the bottom of the "Level PR formative assessment scoring worksheet".

- A. What did the teacher notice while working with the student?
 - a. How did the student hold their pencil?
 - b. Did the teacher have to do much prompting?
 - c. Did the student follow oral directions?

- B. How would the teacher assess the student's emotional reading readiness?
 - a. Interest. Does the student show excitement and focus?
 - b. Motivation. Is the student independently engaged and trying?
 - c. Temperament. How would the teacher categorize the student's mood?
 - d. Disposition. What does the student's body language tell the teacher?

- C. What are the student's strengths and the student's areas of growth?
 - a. Did the student tend to recognize more uppercase or lowercase letters?
 - b. Could the student articulate the sounds for more consonants or vowels?
 - c. Did the student have an easier time writing straight lined letters, curved line letters, letters that use diagonal lines?

Repeat the scoring and analysis steps for each student's Post-letter learning formative assessment.

Once the teacher has scored and analyzed each student's assessment, the teacher will look for trends or other noticings that will help the teacher plan effective instruction.

- D. What are the class strengths and the class areas of growth? Record the analysis and class responsive teaching plan on the "Class data analysis worksheet".
Do any trends stand out in the following categories?
 - a. Reading readiness behaviors (interest, motivation, temperament, disposition)
 - b. Prerequisite skills (following oral directions, pencil grip, completing the task with minimal examples)
 - c. Uppercase and lowercase letters
 - d. Consonants and vowels
 - e. Straight lined, curved lined, and diagonal lined letters

5. Planning for instruction

How does student data impact instruction? This data will impact what letter names, sounds, and formations are prioritized during Unit 5 instruction. The Reading Readiness and Phonics lesson plans are thoughtfully designed to offer age-appropriate and highest-quality instruction to students. Based on the class student data, the teacher will make strategic decisions about how to spend class times.

The chart lists examples of a few trends the teacher may notice in the students' data, what inferences the teacher may make, and a responsive teaching plan teachers can complete to support the students.

Sample Class Analysis and Responsive Teaching Plan Chart

Class data	Inference	Responsive teaching plan
Students demonstrated few indicators of emotional reading readiness.	Students haven't had the opportunity to learn and practice reading readiness behaviors.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Be ready to explicitly name participation expectations and support students' growth with frequent positive reinforcement and modeling. Consider ways to bring in more music and movement to encourage participation.
Students demonstrated low proficiency with letter sounds.	This is an area of growth.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The teacher will need to explicitly model correct mouth formations for sounds. The teacher will reference articulatory gesture guidance and use that during instruction.
Students demonstrated high proficiency of letter names.	This is a strength of the class.	Explore resources on Raz-Plus for extended learning opportunities. Letter books would offer opportunities for students to practice their letter fluency.
Students did not hold the pencil correctly when writing.	Students' ability to form letters correctly will be impacted by their ability to correctly hold a writing utensil.	The teacher needs to build correct pencil holding technique into instructional time and be prepared to provide feedback to students on pencil grip.

Letter Formation Writing Assessment

Sample student summary analysis:

Theo can identify 23 uppercase letters and 24 lowercase letters! He formed 19 uppercase letters and 19 lowercase letters correctly during the assessment. He is eager to try. He tracked his place with his pencil when reading the letters. He held his pencil correctly. Theo used the baseline on the letter formation sheet to position his letters!

Theo's strengths are letter identification and letter formation. Theo's areas of growth are letter sounds (see scoring worksheet for specifics) and flipping his letters.

Multidimensional Fluency Scale

Use the following rubric (1-4) to rate reader fluency in the areas of expression and volume, phrasing, smoothness, and pace.

EXPRESSION AND VOLUME

1. Reads words as if simply to get them out. Little sense of trying to make text sound like natural language. Tends to read in a quiet voice.
2. Begins to use voice to make text sound like natural language in some areas of the text but not in others. Focus remains largely on pronouncing the word. Still reads in a quiet voice.
3. Make text sound like natural language throughout the better part of the passage. Occasionally slips into expressionless reading. Voice volume is generally appropriate throughout the text.
4. Reads with good expression and enthusiasm throughout the text. Varies expression and volume to match his or her interpretation of the passage.

PHRASING

1. Reads in a monotone with little sense of boundaries; frequently reads word-by-word.
2. Frequently reads in two- and three-word phrases, giving the impression of choppy reading; improper stress and intonation fail to mark ends of sentences and clauses.
3. Reads with a mixture of run-ons, mid-sentence pauses for breath, and some choppiness, reasonable stress and intonation.
4. Generally reads with good phrasing, mostly in clause and sentence units, with adequate attention to expression.

SMOOTHNESS

1. Makes frequent extended pauses, hesitations, false starts, sound-outs, repetitions, and/or multiple attempts.
2. Experiences several "rough spots" in text where extended pauses or hesitations are more frequent and disruptive.
3. Occasionally breaks smooth rhythm because of difficulties with specific words and/or structures.
4. Generally reads smoothly with some breaks, but resolves word and structure difficulties quickly, usually through self-correction.

PACE

1. Reads slowly and laboriously.
2. Reads moderately slowly.
3. Reads with an uneven mixture of fast and slow pace.
4. Consistently reads at conversational pace; appropriate rate throughout reading.

Scores range from 4-16. Generally, scores below 8 indicate that fluency may be a concern. Scores of 8 or above indicate that the student is making good progress in fluency.

Adapted from Zutell & Rasinski, 1991.

Comprehension Question Guide

All texts have comprehension targets which fall into several categories. The two major categories for comprehension are literal and evaluative. Literal comprehension questions examine the reader's understanding of information that is clearly stated in the text. The literal meaning is simply what the text says. It is what actually happens in the text. This level of understanding provides the foundation for more advanced comprehension.

Literal questions

Example literal question stems – fiction:

- What was the story mostly about?
- Who are the characters in the story?
- What is happening in the story? What is happening in this picture? On this page?
- Where is the story set?
- What are X characters doing on this page?

Example literal question stems – nonfiction:

Consider the following when leading an instructional session:

- What did you learn on this page? (nonfiction text or fiction text)
- What was the most interesting fact that you read?
- What information did you get from the labels, captions, or diagrams?
- What information can be found in the illustrations or photographs to support your understanding of the text?
- What revisions have you made as you have acquired new information?

Another type of comprehension questions are inferential questions. These questions are used as a scaffold to evaluative questions that require higher-level critical thinking skills. Inferential questions require responses that are indirectly stated, induced, or require information. They require a reader to use text evidence along with their schema, or background knowledge, to make a guess.

Inferential questions

Example inferential question stems – fiction:

- Why did the character say/do/think that?
- How does the character feel? What makes you think that?
- What kind of person is the character? What have you learned about them from their actions?
- What is the problem in the story? How do you know?
- What do you think is going to happen next? Why do you think that?

Example inferential question stems – nonfiction:

- Is there anything you read that surprised you? Why?
- What does the author think about this topic? What makes you think that?
- What do you notice in the illustrations or photographs that the author didn't tell you?
- Why do you think this is occurring? What else does this tell you about the topic?
- What events led to the problem in the text? How are they related?
- Why was ___ (event) so significant? What makes you think that?

Evaluative comprehension questions require deeper levels of understanding. These questions ask readers to connect the literal meanings from individual words to create additional levels of meaning. This meaning could be intentionally planned by the author, a product of rhetorical function. Evaluative questions require the reader to formulate a response based on their opinion.

Evaluative questions

Example evaluative question stems – fiction:

- Why is the title a good one for the story/text? (nonfiction text or fiction text)
- Would you want to be friends with this character? Why or why not?
- How could the characters have behaved differently?
- What is the most important part of the book? Why do you think that?
- What lesson did the character learn? What lesson did we learn?

Example inferential question stems – nonfiction:

- What was interesting about ___ (topic)?
- How did this information change your way of thinking about this topic?
- After reading the text, what are the larger ideas you have taken away?
- How does the author present a sequence of events? Or set of directions?
- What do you think of this text? Is this text interesting to read?
